

Disney Princess is about fantasy and role play. It's the perfect combination for creating magical moments your guests will be sure to remember.

Cinderella's Missing Glass Slipper

Hand the princess-of-honor – the birthday child – a map covered with decades of pixie dust (a pinch of glitter). On it, write a note about Cinderella's missing glass slipper hidden in your house, backyard, etc. Each guest gets to guess the answer to a riddle, and as a group, the guests can run to wherever the clue leads and find another one. Be sure to have plenty of slippers filled with jewels for all to share. For your smaller princesses, consider using picture clues instead of written ones.

Princess Coronation Station

Let your guests feel the magic of being 'crowned' a princess. Have each guest create their own tiara and magic wand. Provide pre-cut tiaras and shapes, paint, stickers, and lots of sparkle. Once everyone has finished, have the guests line up for their coronation.

Smooch the Frog

Draw a picture of a frog on a large sheet of paper. Be creative and use paint to add color and texture. Be sure to mark an "X" on the frog's lips. Players will take turns trying to pin a small paper "smooch" (lips) on the "X" while blindfolded. The princess/prince whose kiss lands closest to the lips wins!

Carriage Painting

Let your little ones have their pumpkin and paint them, too! Cover the table with newspaper. Provide small pumpkins, paints and paintbrushes. Let your princesses/princes paint their very own carriage.
